Expanded DB File in RDB

Upload DB file to RDB

- Perl script is used to upload the expanded db file to RDB. Whenever new release of DB file, user will run this Perl script to upload to RDB
- During the upload process of expanded DB file, the device names (id) are inserted in to Device table from the PV name (device_id:[subsystem]:record specifier).
- We can view the user name and the date time of device/record creation.

- [kv73@pc0026 ~]$ read_db.pl -h
- USAGE: /home/tools/bin/read_db.pl [options]
 - h : help
 - v : verbose
 - f DB-file : EPICS DB file to read
 - g dbgroup_id : logic to put records under
 - i Database Instance : D-Development, P-Production
 - r Remove RDB Internal Values: <Default value is N-No> Y
 - d Delete extra PV's from RDB: <Default value is N-No> Y
 - a Adds dbgroup in RDB: <Input IOC NAME> e.g.LI-VA-IOC-01
 - E Input Epics Version in RDB: <R3.13.9> e.g.R3.14.6

Reads an EPICS DB file into the relational database.

Does remove existing RDB entries, if you select option -d to Y, else just adds the DB file information. For a from-scratch import, first run 'dbgroups.pl -D'.

What we are using

- Oracle 9i on Red Hat Linux AS v2.1 - Dell Server
- Apache Web Server
- PHP
 - User interface screens / forms for data input & reading using web browser
- Perl
 - for uploading of flat files to the RDB & vice versa
- ER Studio
 - Logical and Physical design of the EPICS database
- Plan to move Oracle 10g on Red Hat Linux AS 4.0 – Dell Server
